

Acceptable Use of Technology Resources

East Dakota Educational Cooperative provides technology resources to its students and staff for educational and administrative purposes. The Director shall encourage use of the Cooperative's local and wide area networks to promote educational excellence by facilitating academic achievement, resource sharing, innovation, and communication. The use of all technology resources is a privilege, not a right.

The administration is directed to develop protocols which comply with all federal and state laws and regulations governing schools and computer use. The regulation also shall insure proper use of Cooperative networks and the Internet by students, staff members, and members of the community.
